New Jersey

Jensy Jimenez, born in the Dominican Republic, received a strenuous STEM curriculum at the Bronx High School of Science in New York City and then moved to Jersey where the bagels are better. He is pursuing an Engineering degree at Bergen Community College and through his involvement in student leadership has gained a valuable with industry professionals at Rutgers University, which allowed his already ardent passion for story telling and graphic design to be expanded into the world of web development and consultation. A Christ-centered individual with a heart to serve, he is valuable part of any team.
